

Time Machine

The "Time Machine" event encourages participants to explore their favourite historical periods through various activities. They begin by sharing photos representing their chosen eras, then engage in a relay race to collect materials for building a time machine. Teams brainstorm and select a specific year to travel to, justifying their choice through a podcast. Participants then create costumes reflecting their chosen era and perform a themed dance. The event culminates in re-enacting significant historical events, imagining how their company would operate in that time period, and concludes with an eclectic party blending elements from different time periods.
